Audrey Harrison

Topic Selection

Website name: Audrey's Trinket Database

Description: I have a vast collection of items which I get virtually no use out of, which I still decide to keep around anyways because they're fun to look at. My array of trinkets includes ashtrays, chambersticks, novelty erasers, bookmarks, Calico Critters, dolls, plushies, ceramic figures, rocks, and so forth. It's gotten to the point where I have trouble even remembering what all I have, and while I could solve this problem by downsizing my collection, there's another option which is also relevant to the class: archiving them on a website. "Audrey's Trinket Database" will function as a way to view, search for, and categorize my trinkets in an easy-to-view format.

Pages:

- Home
- About
- Collections (there will be pages for each category of trinkets, descriptions for each one)
- Ranking/Leaderboard (favorite, rarest/least common, highest rated)
- Trinkets I want for my collection

Data: Various data about the trinkets will need to be stored, such as name, estimated value, source/producer of trinket, and a description. Possibly a log in which allows an administrator to edit data directly on the website. Rating feature where viewers of the website can rate a trinket out of 5 stars and write a review.